A PROVINCIAL BANK

THERE WAS SOMETHING quite naive in Hon. Charles Dunning's apparently very sincere offer made to the Federal Social members in the House of Commons, that if the Alberta Government wished to apply for a charter to operate a chartered bank he would do all in his power to help get it. But seemingly they, like their leader, Mr. Abernethy, feared the Greeks, when they came bearing presents such as this, and promptly shied away from the offer. It is unlikely that the offer will be accepted now or never. But it is not unlikely that a demand will be made to confer on the Alberta Government a demand that it be granted powers similar to those now held by the Bank of Canada, on the specious pretext that Alberta, being a Sovereign State, (sic), is entitled to monetize (it's own credit, in complete forgetfulness that the Province has already monetized its credit to the hilt and can hardly go much further along that road without lapsing into a state which ordinary business people describe as plain "bankruptcy".

ENDING UNEMPLOYMENT

EVER SINCE THE depression began back in the dark ages of 1929-1930 there has been talk of ending unemployment, or perishing in the attempt, work and wages schemes, or other suggestions from politicians and those in charge most of which have all ended in futility.

According to a dispatch from Ottawa there is still more talk being indulged in on the same subject. Whether it will bear fruit remains to be seen. It may be just as effective as the promise to gain complete control of Canada's currency and credit. However, be that as it may, it appears as if the Ottawa Government is beginning to see the light.

It appears to be a four year plan this time, based on the thought of spending $100,000,000 on public works under Federal supervision and management. Something in the neighbourhood of $25,000,000 will be spent in the present fiscal year. More money is to be spent on Prairie Rehabilitation, improvement in parks, camp sites for tourists, reforestation, and the like.

Most important of all, however, would seem to be the completion of a coast-to-coast hard-surfaced highway from Halifax to Vancouver to accommodate tourist and inter-provincial trade. The importance of the tourist trade to Canada cannot be emphasized too much or dimmed into the public ear too often. When one realizes that in a normal year the value of this trade may amount to as high as $281,000,000 or be as low as $61,000,000, the full significance of the tourist trade becomes realized. It is one of the most important items in our national economy, and, of course, if roads were built of a class which would satisfy the demands of the tourists, it follows that tourist trade would increase with resultant benefits to the Dominion as a whole.

CONSERVATIVE LEADERSHIP

SOMETIME THIS summer the Conservative Party in Canada will require to select a leader to fill the place which will be vacated by Mr. Bennett. Whether the public realizes it or not, this is an important matter, and one that affects Canada as a whole, for even in opposition, the office of leadership of His Majesty's Loyal Opposition is one that carries with it much responsibility.

It appears from press despatches, probably inspired, that Hon. H. H. Stevens is flirting with the idea of returning to the party fold. As a Privy Councillor, Mr. Stevens will receive an invitation to attend the Convention. If he does attend he ought to be a strong contender for the position. While leader of a one man band as a Reconstructionist, it is certain that Mr. Stevens' thoughts and beliefs are still those of Conservative stripes.

It will be admitted that the quarrel which drove him from office was not a quarrel with the party, but a quarrel with his leader. Who was in the right is not a matter of great moment now. But it is certain that in losing the services of Mr. Stevens, the party lost the services of a valuable man. While he may not have the great ability which distinguishes Mr. Bennett amongst his colleagues and others, it is probably correct to say that he is a better campaigner and vote getter than his former chief. At any rate it is almost certain that if Mr. Bennett goes, Mr. Stevens will return, and that if he does, he will immediately become a force to be reckoned with, whether as leader or as a private member.

THE SOCIAL CREDIT BOARD

LAST YEAR the Government appropriated $50,000 for the purposes of the Social Credit Board. This year the sum was boosted to $100,000. No real or satisfactory accounting as to how the $50,000 appropriated last year was spent was made. This year the money will be spent under a Statute declared invalid by the Supreme Court of Canada. In other words the Government of this Province is proposing to spend $100,000 illegally. It is true that the Act in question is the subject of appeal to the Privy Council, but in the meantime the Social Credit Board is functioning.

The Government evaded the question as to what part of this fund may be spent in assisting the Social Creditors of Saskatchewan in the provincial election to be held there shortly. None of this Alberta money should be so expended. It is not for the purpose of supplying literature which purportedly is supposed to explain the theories of the movement.

A COMMUNITY HALL

THE FIRE last week in the Masonic Hall has helped to focus attention on the necessity of a hall for community purposes. The fire did serious damage. In some respects it is a pity that it was not a great deal more serious, for then there could have been no alternative but to build a new hall more suitable to the needs of the Town and District. As it is, it may be necessary, even if not advisable, to reconstruct the present building. Had a total loss occurred, it is conceivable that a new building would have been erected, which would have provided a meeting place for lodge purposes, dances, picture shows, entertainments and the like.

The Town has power to exempt such property from taxation, and with the saving which could thereby be effected, plus maintenance and operation costs, there would seem to be no real reason why such a venture could not be made to pay. At present practically the same people are endeavouring to support at least three separate buildings, none of which are really suitable for all the purposes of a community hall in a community the size of Bassano. It may be utterly impossible to finance such a project but the proposal should not be rejected in a demagogic manner or without canvassing every possible means of obtaining a proper local meeting place.

THE BANKING PROPOSAL

THE HON. MR. DUNNING's proposal that "social credit" be incorporated by act to set through a chartered bank operated by the Alberta government, brought surprising repercussions. FREDERICK ABERNETHY said, "If the idea is to put this government under another restriction I have not any interest in it. We have got enough restrictions now." Mr. Blackmore, M.P., "social credit" leader in Ottawa said "such a bank would have to get its bank of Canada bills from the Bank of Canada, just as other chartered banks do and would have to conform to the policy of the Bank of Canada. It would be unlikely to help in the introduction of "social credit". Section 92 of the B.N.A. Act gives the Dominion exclusive authority to regulate banks, banking and the issuance of paper money. If "social credit" requires a Provincial bank to have all the power of a Central bank it is obvious the proper step to take is to amend the B.N.A. Act. In view of Premier Abernethy's and Mr. Blackmore's response to the Hon. C. A. Dunning's proposal the latest campaign against Alberta banks places the "martyrdom" of Messrs Powell and Unwin in a ridiculous light. The situation resolves into a tragic farce. In 1935 and again in 1936 the Alberta government has been successful in having the establishment of a provincial bank but in 1937 it defeated a resolution which contained a clause providing for voluntary contributions of one-fourth the sessional indemnities of members to help raise the necessary money to start the bank. No steps were taken to carry out the mandate given in the resolution of 1935 and '36.

From the negative attitude taken by the Abernethy government it is clear that the chartered bank business is one to be abusively talked about but not to be entered into. Mr. Manning, for instance, has repeatedly said the banks could pay a $2 million tax at no cost to themselves. The legislation passed on an Act levying this amount of taxation upon the banks and the Supreme Court declared it ultra-vires. Thereupon the cry was raised, "the will of the people has been frustrated." No mention is ever made of the will of the people in not implementing the resolutions of '35 and '36. The flat contradiction arising out of the "social credit" attitude toward chartered banks seems to escape their apologists. In one breath "social credit" demands the banks and claims they have the ability to pay out $2 million without cost. In the next breath "social credit" admits chartered banks are under the control of the Bank of Canada and restricted in their operations—so much so that "social credit" has no intention of going into the banking business. It is incredible that an opportunity to make millions at no cost should be refused by an administration which heretofore has insisted such action is possible by Alberta banks. It is now clear the chartered banks are abolished and the "enemy" in high finance is the Bank of Canada. It is also clear that until every province has a bank with the full power of the Bank of Canada to charter banks can "monetize provincial credit." If and when this time comes Canada will become Balkan States of North America and Confederation will be utterly destroyed. The utter absurdity of "social credit" tactics borders upon the grotesque. BRITAIN'S DEFENCE PROGRAM

TO SOME IT IS reassuring, to others distressing, to hear the prodigious accumulation of war materials and defence organization in Great Britain on a scale hitherto undreamed of. Up till a few years ago Great Britain had been progressively dismantling. Now she is progressively rearming at a pace which no other country in Europe is likely to exceed.

In the course of Britain's five-year arms plan the Government has been prepared to spend $1,500,000,000. But Mr. Chamberlain grinningly lets it be known that the expenditure may not stop at that. In fact, the Government puts no limit of expenditure before itself. It is prepared to go on spending more and more, out of the revenue and out of loan, until its war strength is beyond question, or until an armistice is agreed upon in Europe.

Nor has Mr. Chamberlain refrained from hinting that the real military strength of Great Britain is even greater than its apparent strength. Behind the program of new capital ships, large cruisers, submarines, and on, and the recruitment of personnel in the merchant marine, the ship-construction yard, the merchant seaman. The first-line strength of the home defence air force has risen from 52 squadrons in 1934 to 123 squadrons today. In the second line, and in the Government factories, and the "shadow factories" and the immense potential manufacturing power of British industry in general. And Britain's program provides for the contingency of a "totalitarian" war, in which—though there is no conscription in Britain—all the man-power of the country may be concerned, all the manufacturing power, all the financial capacity for flinging new materials into the colossal bonfire presupposed in the idea of a world war.

In most periods of history, in most countries, the provision of vast military forces has been an indication of militancy. But the one reassuring fact about Britain's rearmament is that in a world where militancy abounds there is no logical reason to suspect Britain of aggressive intention. Mr. Chamberlain stated that his objectives in the defence plans were the provision of security for Great Britain, the protection of the trade routes, the defence of overseas territories, and co-operation in defence with the allies.

The justification—the sole justification—of such force is that it should be a counterpoise to aggressive violence, that it should exist as an assurance of the support of law among nations. Those who take the responsibility of leading up this huge array of force thereby assume another responsibility—that of ceaselessly pursuing a policy which will make others, even that competitive armament is unprofitable, and become ready to listen to constructive counsels of appeasement and peace.

EVAPORATION AND MOISTURE

STRANGE TO RELATE the rainfall in certain parts of the extreme northern belt of Alberta's agricultural area is not much greater than in the south. However, the evaporation is much greater in the south, due to prevalence of winds and dry atmosphere.

The late S. G. Barnes, who conducted elaborate experiments for the federal department of agriculture, at the Swift Current experimental farm, showed that showers of a quarter of an inch or less have as a rule no appreciable effect on crop growth. The moisture is generally lost within a day or two by evaporation.

This means that heavy rains are needed to sustain growing crops. Fortunately the west gets its heaviest rainfall in the month of June. But during the past few years the Weather Man has forgotten his sprinkler in that month.

WHAT TO EAT TO BE HEALTHY

Nanner Four.

Every individual requires to eat a certain quantity of vitamin C to prevent scurvy. A lack of vitamin C affects the miles and miles of capillaries throughout the body.

The following foods give you vitamin C: Oranges, lemons, and grapefruit, tomatoes raw or factory canned, and most raw fruits and vegetables.

Vitamin D is very readily destroyed by heat. It is essential, therefore, that everyone take each day some raw vegetables. Canadian farmers cannot produce an excellent source of vitamin C because the cooking is done without exposure to air.

The lack of vitamin D in the diet causes rickets in children, soft bones and defective teeth.

The following foods give you vitamin D: Cod liver oil, and cod fish oils in liquid or capsule form, egg yolk, and sunshine in summer.

As this food element is not obtained in ordinary foods in adequate amounts, it is absolutely essential for every infant and every advisable for adult to take some vitamin D during the winter months - from October through to April. One teaspoonful of cod liver oil gives you as much vitamin D as 14 eggs yolk, or 1000 servings of spinach. There are available in many parts of Canada specially prepared milk and bread which contain vitamin D.

Much has been written in recent years about the vitamins, but not all that one hears about them is true. Food faddists and exploiters have toyed with the vitamins extensively.

They have a very important part in normal diet for normal people and if you follow carefully the information contained in this series of articles on "What to Eat to be Healthy" you will secure authentic information and practical advice on the foods you should eat.

The next article in the series will deal with minerals in the diet.

Sentry: "Hall, Who goes there?" New Recruit: "Nobody. I've been and I'm just coming back."

Housewife: "I thought I told you come after supper." Hungry Jim: "That's exactly what I did come after."

Press Agent: "There's a bunch of people outside wanting to see you. Among them is a bishop who says he married you some time ago." Film Star: "Gee, I'm certain I never married a bishop!"

Angler: "You've been watching me for three hours. Why don't you try fishing yourself?" Onlooker: "I ain't got the patience."

"To achieve success, keep your ears open and your mouth closed," says a lecturer. To eat a meal, reverse the process.

Instead of more people per square mile, the world needs more square people per mile.

THE PROGRESS OF FINANCE

All the world's a stage,
And all the cash and credits merely players;
They have their exits and their entrances;
And one transaction in its time plays many parts,
Its act being seven ages. At first the kites,
Mewling and puking in Jacob's pockets;
Then the rusty tool, in its scabbard,
Or worn bag, creeping like a snail,
Unwillingly to Carthage. And then the draft,
Sighing like a lance, with woeful protestation
Drawn on its master's Genoa office. Then a bond,
Full of strange oaths, and bearded like a pard,
Jealous in honour, sudden and quick in quarrel,
Seeking a hubble reputation,
Even in the cannon's mouth. And the bank-note,
In fair round belly and good capon lid'd,
With figures severe and border of formal cut,
Full of wise fables and modern signatures;
And so it plays its part. The sixth age shift
Into the lean and slippered pantaloon,
With spectacles on nose and pouch on side;
Its youthful assets well-saved, and its big manly voice
Turning again towards government control, pipes
And whistles in its sound. Last scene of all,
That ends the strange eventful history,
Is second childhood and Social Credit,
Sans bank, sans assets, sans sense, sans everything.
And so cheerily, — R. Y. F.
